Scheme To Lift Taxes Off Wealth

Senator La Follette Says Revenue Measure Full of Iniquities

SUGGESTS NEW TITLE

Says New Loopholes Are Provided to Enable Capitalists To Shirk

Washington Bureau,)
The Capital Times.)

WASHINGTON, D. C. —That the revenue bill submitted by the majority of the senate finance committee is a measure designed to enable organized wealth to escape its share of taxes is the statement made by Senator La Follette in a statement in the minority report of the committee. Senator La Follette's statement follows:

"I am in general accord with the economic sections of the report of the minority in so far as they criticize the proposals of the majority to reduce the supertaxes upon large individual incomes, to repeal the excess-profits tax and the capital-stock tax, to retain the transportation taxes, and to greatly exaggerate the existing disparity between corporation and individual and partnership taxes.

"I feel, however, that the recommendations and proposed amendments of the minority will do little more than palliate some of the monstrous iniquities of this bill, without curing any of its fundamental evils.

"The correct title of the proposed bill should be "An act to untax wealth and penalize industry and enterprise."

"One single principle dominates the entire bill—to lift the burden of war costs and government extravagances from the backs of individuals and corporations of great wealth and transfer this burden to those whose industry and productivity is essential to the Nation's prosperity. Not Not only are the supertaxes upon the incomes of multi-millionaires cut in half and the taxes upon the profiteering of corporations abolished, but new loopholes are provided by which, in the future, American capitalists can more and more completely escape taxation.

"I shall not at this time attempt to deal with all the errors and evils of our fiscal system. In the course of the consideration of the bill by the Senate I shall, however, take occasion to point out some of the more glaring and indefensible defects and demonstrate that if these evils and abuses are corrected and proper measures adopted it would be easily possible to raise the burden from productivt industry and individual enterprise and at the same time greatly reduce the taxes upon the individual."

Farm Bureau Demands Repeal of Esch Law

CHICAGO—The American Farm Bureau federation, with a membership of 1,300,000, announced today it had decided to ask congress immediately for repeal of the Esch-Cummins law and the Adamson act. These were war-time measures and they are preventing a speedy return to normal conditions, said J. R. Howard, president of the federation. "The Cummins-Esch law, or the transportation act of 1920, was the vehicle through which the railroads were returned to their owners," Mr. Howard said. "It was considered the best possible law which could be passed for the return of the roads under conditions then prevailing. One provision of this act we objected to, the clause directing the Interstate Commerce commission to fix railroad rates to produce a minimum net return of 5½ per cent above all expenses and taxes on the preset value of American railroads. The farm bureau believes this to b paternalistic, class legislation, un-American and unsound."

Blaine Is Present At Conference Of Governors Today

Meeting at Des Moines to Consider Farms and Business

BULLETIN.

DES MOINES, Ia.—Gov. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, in speaking to middle west governors and state officials in conference here today, declared there can be no return to normal conditions until the Esch-Cummins law is repealed. After a lengthy talk on the freight rate problem and the unemployment situation generally, the governor presented a resolution calling for repeal of the Esch-Cummins law. Action was deferred.

(By the Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Iowa—Governors or their representatives from eight middle western states were here for the second day's conference with Gov. Kendall of Iowa to consider means of making farming profitable, business better and diminishing unemployment.

Several resolutions were expected to be passed today. One agreed upon by the governors urges speedy action by the Interstate Commerce commission on the pending western hay and grain rate case. Another would urge congress to reaffirm to the state's authority over state rates. A third would seek to bring about lower interest rate and longer terms of credit for farmers from the federal reserve banks.

Another resolution expected to come before the conference today would promise President Harding the support of all the states represented at the conference on any action he may take to avert the threatened railroad strike.

All Factions In Railroad Crisis Begin Conference

Situation More Hopeful But U. S. Prepares for Emergency

(By the Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Ohio — National headquarters here of the Railroad Yardmasters' Association of America with a membership of more than 8,000 today sent out notices to its members to remain at work in the event of a railroad strike.

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO—The first of a series of conferences in Chicago at which representatives of all factions in the railroad strike situation may decide the outcome of the strike call issued by the Big Four brotherhoods for Oct. 30, began here today to continue over the week-end.

Three group meetings are scheduled:

1—Executives of the shopmen, maintenance of way workers, clerks, telegraphers and others to decide their attitude toward the announced strike of the train service employes.

2—Brotherhood leaders are on their way to hear the government's attitude through the Railroad Labor board tomorrow.

3—Railroad executives of the central division meet Friday in Chicago to discuss all phases of the strike situation while executives of other divisions meet in their own regions.

Freight rate reductions approximately equivalent to the 12 per cent wage reduction in wages ordered last July 1, by the Railroad Labor board, where indicated as the probable basic suggestion the board will propose, with the backing of the administration to avert the strike.

The board's policy as outlined by Commissioner Hooper would propose to the brotherhood chiefs immediate suspension of the strike order on their part and their influence in preventing other walkouts while the executives would be asked to concede the withdrawal of the proposed request for further wage cuts and grant an immediate reduction of freight rates.

While prospects for settlement of the strike were growing brighter, army officials, it is understood were making preparations for operating trains by federal troops.

Dispatches from San Antonio said officials of the eight corps area in the southwest had been instructed to forward to Washington lists of all officers and enlisted men with experience in 26 lines of railroad work.

Southwestern roads largely comprise the group under instructions to walk out the first day of the strike and it is understood it was the preponderance of votes favoring a strike by the brotherhoods came from that section. Sentiment among employes of eastern roads, it is understood, was much more evenly divided on the strike question.

Throng At Dollar Day in Madison

Huge Throng Flocks to City to Take Advantage of Bargains

ALL STORES JAMMED

Restaurants Also Crowded At Big Event of Year Gets Under Way

No room for doubt as to the success of Madison's dollar day was left this morning, when the streets about the Capitol square began to fill with city and county shoppers, many of them carrying baskets and bags, wherein to deposit their purchases.

By noon several of the stores had been obliged to close their doors to enable the purchasers inside to get their goods and make room for the huge crowds waiting outside. Restaurants were packed this noon with busy shoppers, chiefly women. All day long they thronged the streets, going in and out of shops and gazing into windows.

Prices have been lowered to the lowest possible level for the occasion and the articles on Dollar Day counters include goods to satisfy the needs of multitudes of buyers. Madison merchants who are observing Dollar Day are giving real values and rates are being cut on a large number of commodities that have not been advertised.

The opportunity, it is pointed out, is a good one to cement relations between the town and the country, to make Madison the shopping center of this great producing section of the state. Display men of various stores have worked hard to made a novel presentation of the goods. Dollar Day has been endorsed by the executive committee of the Madison Advertising club.

He was brought to the city hall in an automobile to attend to some private business. Mr. Norsman has improved considerably from all appearances, but is still quite weak, and is not able to walk to any great extent.

He is cheerful, despite his condition, and says that he believes the rest will put him in shape so he will be able to return to his duties later.

350 Attend Gordon Piano Recital Here

Philip Gordon, the distinguished young pianist, entertained an audience of 350 at a recital at the Masonic Temple last evening. Mr. Gordon was introduced by C. F. Whelan. The recital was impromtu and the program was selected from compositions that are favorites with Mr. Gordon. Before each number he explains its motif, history and technical development. Mr. Gordon has a buoyant personality that charms with the exuberance of youth. He played the Prelude C sharp minor with virility on technical shading that delighted everyone. In the Country Dance he expressed a poetic interpretation that reflected his youthfulness. Interspersed with Mr. Gordon performance were pauses in the playing by Mr. Gordon in which the Ampico Reproducing Piano took up the composition where he stopped and demonstrated to the audience the degree to which inventive genuis has made it actually possible to reproduce the playing of a great artist. The records interpreted by the reproducer being taken from the personal playing of the composition by Mr. Gordon.

American Representative at Paris Has Narrow Escape From Death

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS — A bomb exploded today in the house of Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador, seriously injuring the valet who opened the package containing it.

The room in which the explosion occurred was wrecked. Ambassador Herrick arrived at the house two minutes after the explosion.

The receipt of the bomb followed threatening letters which have been coming to the ambassador in the last few days in connection with the case of two Italians recently convicted of murder in Massachusetts.

The bomb was contained in a carefully addressed package addressed personally to the ambassador. The ambassador's valet opened it to save Mr. Herrick the trouble.

Immediately after the explosion Ambassador Herrick went to the hotel Crillon where Gen. Pershing is stopping. The entire detective service of Paris was at work in an attempt to trace the origin of the bomb.

Considerable damage was done the ambassador's residence, outside the room where the explosion occurred as well as within it.

Lloyd George Declares Unemployment Acute

LONDON—The situation in England as regards trade and unemployment is worse than at any time since the end of the Napoleonic wars, declared Lloyd George in the house of commons today in outlining the government's policy on these two subjects. At present he said there are 1,750,000 persons unemployed and added that the greatest unemployment to the extent of 17 per cent was in the metal trades. He declared that the causes for this situation could all be summed up in one word-war. As a part of the government's plan of alleviation, he said the government proposed to ask parliament for an appropriation of another £300,000 to enable ex-service men to emigrate to the dominions, whither he said 60,000 already had settled with government assistance.

Harding Pledges Peace With England; Declares Conflict is Unthinkable

Rev. W. M'Kay, G. A. R. Leader, Called By Death

Commander of Local G. A. R. Post is Summoned Here Today

Rev. W. J. McKay, retired Madison Methodist pastor, and for 35 years a member of the West Wisconsin conference, died at the Methodist hospital here at 2:45 Wednesday morning, after a serious illness of more than a month's duration. He was 74 years old and one of the best known clergymen and Civil war veterans in Wisconsin. He was head of the local G. A. R. post and formerly department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic of Wisconsin.

Rev. McKay was born May 29, 1847. He first came to Madison in 1880 as pastor of the First Methodist church here. After serving that pastorate for four years, he moved his family to Sparta, Wis., to become pastor of the Methodist church there. Later he went to Chippewa Falls, and in 1893 he was elected presiding elder of tu Madison district and came back to this city to make his home. He was married on Jan. 25, 1875, to Mrs. A. A. McKenzie, who, with five children, survives him.

For six years he remained in Madison, then moved to La Crosse, where he served as the pastor of the Methodist church. Two years afterward he was elected to the Rock River conference, Chicago district, with headquarters at Waukegan, Ill. In 1902 he returned to Madison, retired from the ministry, and purchased the real estate office of C. F. Crone, a veteran real estate broker in Madison, then doing business at 19 W. Main st.

He was elected a delegate to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church from the West Wisconsin conference which was held in Philadelphia in 1884, in New York in 1888 and in Cleveland in 1896. This conference is the legislative body of the church.

Before coming to Madison, he had served 18 months with Co. I of the 44th Wisconsin infantry. In 1909 he was elected commander of the Madison post of the G. A. R., and served in that capacity until his death. He was also secretary-treasurer of the Camp Randall Memorial association, president of the Dane County Memorial association and secretary of the Soldiers' Relief commission. He has taken an active part in all reunions of old soldiers in Madison and on numerous occasions has been selected to give the principal addresses on Memorial Day in Madison.

A man of keen insight in human character, he was loved by all who knew him, especially by the veterans of the civil war who sat with him year after year in the reunion circles. As a member of the clergy, his views were respected by all in and out of his profession. He had earned the esteem and good will of all of Madison's business men during Surviving, besides his wife, are four sons, Paul W. McKay of Chicago; R. R. McKay of Dowagiac, Mich.; G. S. McKay of Milwaukee and William McKay of Chicago; and one daughter, Miss Helen McKay, a home. One sister, Mrs. Daniel W. Jones, 1009 E. Johnson st., Madison, and one brother, James McKay of Pond Creek, Okla., also survive him.

Funeral services will probably be held from the Frst Methodist church in Madison, with Dr. E. L. Eaton officiating. Several others pastors in the western conference may also speak. Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

Charge Chicago Paper Concocted Lawrence Story

Atty. Wilke Opens Fire in $125,000 Action Against Evening American

Charging that the Chicago Evening American, with the sole aim of expanding the circulation deliberately concocted and printed false and malicious statements insinuating that Edward J. Lawrence, Madison undertaker, was responsible for the death of his uncle, Richard S. Lawrence, in 1918, Atty. Harold M Wilke, opened the first gun in $125,000 libel suit brought by E. J. Lawrence against the Chicago Evening American Publishing Co. The suit is now being tried in the Circuit court before Judge E. Ray Stevens.

In his address to the jury Mr. Wilke declared that the infamous story of the alleged murder of Richard S. Lawrence, supposedly by his nephew, the supposed exchange and substitution of bodies at Forest Hill cemetery and all other details of the gruesome story printed by the American and known to the public as "The Yellow Diamond murder mystery," was made up by a crime reporter of the American who chanced to be Madison and saw possibilities of a good crime story in the tale told by Mrs. Lawrence, widow of the dead man.

Mr. Wilke said that no effort had been made by the American's reporter to get at the truth of facts, which could easily have been done, for this would have spoiled the sensationalism of the story and that when the truth was made public, the American did not publish it. He pointed out that it would have been a simple matter for the American reporter to have found out that the grave of Mr. Lawrence had not been tampered with; that Mr. E. J. Lawrence had no more money in the Kitch Undertaking establishment after the death of his uncle than before it, and that the money with which he bought his automobile was left him by the will of an aunt. He characterized the whole story as a case of outrageous distortion and misrepresentation.

Stories published last January Concerning the alleged mystery surrounding the death of Richard Lawrence, intimated that Lawrence, instead of being killed by a train at the foot of S. Broom st., as he actually was, was murdered by E. J. Lawrence, that a stranger was killed by the train, and that the bodies were subsequently shifted by Lawrence.

Although the only thing for the jury to decide in the case is the amount of damages to which Mr. Lawrence is entitled, the American having failed to appear to defend the suit, testimony, tending to show the actual facts in the case and the harm the false story has done to Mr. Lawrence's reputation in the community, will be offered today. Many witnesses have been subpoenaed.

On the jury, drawn this morning by Ralph W. Jackman are: Otto Hickstein, Black Earth; Leslie Palmer, Marshall; Fred Loehm, Windsor; Anson Merrick, Fitchburg; Prof. John Haussman, Madison; Frank Ballweg, Roxbury; Lewis Slotten, Primrose; George Oncken, Westport; Henry Sanfleben, Berry; Millard Woodburn, estport; N. C. Kirch, Mazomanie; and Willie Turk, Black Earth.

A. of C. Thanks Public Welfare Body for Action

The board of directors of the Association of Commerce expressed its appreciation yesterday of the action of the Public Welfare association in changing the date of its annual tag day from Homecoming day to Oct. 22.

The following resolution was unanimously passed by the Board: "Our Home-coming guests have their own local charities to support and it seems incompatible with the recognized principles of hospitality to ask them to support ours. This board wishes not only to commend very cordially the action of the Public Welfare board, but also to recommend to all local organizations a continuation of this policy of courtesy to visitors."

Considerable favorable comment has been made on the action taken by the board of directors of the Association of Commerce in lending its efforts, with other organizations, to preventing the staging of tag day and solicitations on days when large gatherings are assembled in Madison. It is believed that this policy will prove helpful in is not seeking to take advantage of its giving out the impression that Madison exceptional facilities as the home of the university and as a convention city.

Speaks at Ceremony Observing Final Surrender of Cornwallis

SEES PROLONGED PEACE

Friendship Must Endure And Nations Must Co-operate He Declares

(By the Associated Press)

YORKTOWN, Va.— A doctrine of enduring friendship between the U. S. and Great Britain was pronounced by Pres. Harding today at a ceremony commemmorating the final surrender of the British expeditionary forces here to the revolutionary army of Washington.

Surrounded by high officials and standing within sight of the spot where Cornwallis laid down his sword in 1781, the president declared a sentiment of peaceful relationship between the two great English speaking nations for all time to come. That either should ever again lift the sword against the other, he said, must be "unthinkable."

"In the trusteeship of preserving civilization," he continued "we were naturally arrayed together and the convictions of a civilization worthy of that costly preservation will exalt peace and warn against conflict for all time to come."

The president also took occasion to renew the nation's pledge of participation in the broader affairs of the world and declared his belief that the time had come for "essential cooperation" among nations generally for the betterment of the world.

"We must not claim for the new world," said Mr. Harding, "certainly not for our colonies alone, all the liberal thought of a century and a half ago. There were liberal views and attending sympathy in England and a passionate devotion to more liberal tendencies in France. The triumph of freedom in the American colonies greatly strengthened liberal views in the world. Inevitably this liberal public opinion brought Great Britain and America to a policy of accommodation and pacific adjustment for all our difficulties. There has been honorable and unbroken peace for more than a century, we came to common sacrifice and ensanguined association in the world war, and a future breech of our peaceful and friendly relations is unthinkable.

"Reflecting today on the inevitableness of our participation, on our ties of kinship, friendship and fellowship, and appraising anew, the way the world—God's good world—must share the aspirations to realize the noblest ideals for mankind, there is a fresh hungering for understanding, a new call for cooperation, a clear conviction of purposes and devotions and loyalties not limited to sovereignties nor national boundaries. As the fortunate, successful citizen is both inspiration and example to the community of his growth, so must the fortunate and successful nations help the world to the higher and nobler levels of accomplishment. Here at Yorktown was sealed the charter of the new and free America, but in the charter as written the rational liberaltism of the maturing eighteenth century crying out from both continents.

"No program which seeks to submerge nationality will succeed. In the sober circumspection, retrospection and introspection of these crucial times, we do believe there is sanity and urgent need in bringing the best thought of all great peoples into understanding and cooperative endeavor which shuns the alliances in arms and strengthens the concords of peace, so that each may realize its rightful destiny and contribute its utmost to human advancement and attending human happiness."

3 Treaties Win 66-20 In Senate

Peace With Germany, Austria and Hungary is Ratified

LA FOLLETTE VOTES NO

Wisconsin Senator and Borah Only Republicans In Opposition

WASHINGTON—The new peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary were ratified by the senate last night.

The action completed the administration's immediate peace treaty, but after the formal exchange of ratifications between the powers it is expected that diplomatic officers will be appointed and normal relations fully resumed through negotiation of trade agreements.

Both Germany and Austria have already accepted and ratified the treaties and parliamentary action is expected to be completed in Hungary at an early date.

The treaty with Germany was first ratified. Thirteen senators on the democratic side joined Sen. Underwood, their leader, in support of the treaty.

Two republicans, La Follette and Borah, voted against the treaty. Sen. Lenroot voted for the treaty.

The Wilson leaders in the senate, Glass of Virginia, Heflin of Alabama, Williams of Mississippi, and others who favor the treaty of Versailles, fought their losing battle to the end.

The Austrian treaty was ratified by the same vote as was the German pact, while the Hungarian treaty was approved by a vote of 66 to 17.

The senate attached two conditions to its ratification in the form of reservations of the German Pact recommended by the foreign relations committee.

One reserves to congress the power to control American participation in the reparations commission under the treaty of Versailles. Before the administration can appoint an American representative to the reparations commission it will have to secure a legislative act from congress authorizing the appointment, and them submit the appointment to the senate for confirmation.

The other is designed to prevent Germany from escaping payment of claims which may be pressed against her as a result of damages to life and property caused by the sinking of the Lusitania.

Both were adopted without a roll call.

Judge Luse Praised By Local W.C.T.U. For Strictness With Offenders; Hit Conditions Here

Resolution Says Local Authorities Seem Unable to Cope With "Deplorable Situation" in Madison; Urge Law Enforcement

Claude Z. Luse, judge of the U. S. court of the western district of Wisconsin, was praised by members of the W. C. T. U. Tuesday afternoon. At a meeting, at which delegates reported on the proceedings in the district court here during the past three weeks, a resolution was passed unanimously, expressing the appreciation of that organization for the work of the court and charactorizing conditions in Madison as "deplorable," and beyond the control of "our local authorities." The resolution reads:

"In view of the fact that conditions in Madison are deplorable from law violations, and our local authorities seem to be unable to cope with the situation, be it resolved that we, members of the Central W. C. T. U., and all women interested, wish to express our appreciation to Judge Claude Z. Luse for his excellent work as federal judge.

"When Judge Luse looks a violator in the eye and pronounces sentence, the offender realizes there is neither fear or favor shown him. Justice is meted out impartially and without leniency, to foreigners in the same proportion that it is meted out to an American citizen who takes his chance with the law.

"Be it resolved further, that a copy of this resolution be presented to Judge Claude Z. Luse, a copy be placed in the minutes and a copy sent to The Capital times and the Wisconsin State Journal."

In her address, The Law of the Land, Mrs. Josephine Sizer, president of the W. C. T. U. of Minnesota, emphasized the non-enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the need of people in every community who will stand together and see to the enforcement of the act.

"When some one violates the law we read of it in our papers, but nothing is said of the loyal supporters of the law. What is needed in the enforcement of the Volstead act is peptomists, people who do not sit back like the pessimist and complain 'It can't be done' or like the optimist who says 'It can be done' but lets the other fellow do it. The peptomist is the person who says 'It can be done and it will be done.'"

Mrs. Alfred Kundert, accompanied by Mrs. Homer Carter, sang "Open the Gates of the Temple," and Mrs. G. H. Landgraf gave a solo, "Old Fashions Town." Mrs. F. C. Hopkins introduced the speaker. Announcement was made of a mass meeting to be held Oct. 31, when John F. Kramer, the first federal prohibition commissioner, will give an address.

Skiers Preparing for Big 1921 Season Here

Preparations for an active year of skiing were commenced Sunday morning when members of the Badger Ski club began work on the university slide on Muir knoll. The hill has been widened and re-graded so as to afford an excellent landing place for the skier after his trip through the air.

The Norwegian members of the club are well pleased with the new scaffold, which was built last year, and with the hill as it has been changed. The slide is of strictly standard design throughout, which will encourage competition with other skiers.

Wisconsin is the only university, it is believed, that has a standard ski slide within only a few hundred yards of its main buildings, or even upon its campus. Muir knoll is admirably suited for a ski slide.

Rumors are prevalent that officials of the National Ski association are considering holding the annual championship tournament here, under the auspices of the Badger Ski club. The slide at Cary, Ill., has been blown down, and since it was the initial choice for the tournament the meet may be transferred to Madison.

The remaining candidates will play the rest of the matches off as fast as the weather permits in order that the tourney may be brought to a close.

Outing Club of U. W. Will Hold First Meet

Amendments to the club constitution have been recommended by the board, and will come up for consideration tomorrow evening.

Repeal Cummins Law For Peace On Roads-Blaine

Governor Says Action Might Prevent Trouble On Railroads

The emergency now confronting the country has been and is "the Esch-Cummins law, lack of international trade, closed industries and a war worn world," Gov. Blaine declared today in a statement on present conditions in the country. He said that the railroad problem cannot be settled until all of these other problems are worked out.

Gov. Blaine feels that one of the most feasible ways of preventing trouble between railroad workers and operators of the road is through repeal of the Esch-Cummins law.

Attempted road construction in Wisconsin is no solution for the unemployment problem confronting the state this winter, Gov. Blaine told Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in a telegram sent today, in reply to a query from the secretary.

"Any attempted road construction in a Wisconsin winter climate is clearly no solution of unemployment," the governor says. "Reduction of freight rates and a solution of the railroad question, disarmament, international trade, and the opening of industries is the hope for substantial and permanent relief from conditions," Governor Blaine declares.

Mr. Hoover had asked whether Wisconsin could commence road construction within 90 days on an extended scale, should congress provide additional funds within 11 days.

Judge Instructs Jury to Acquit Bank Heads

Judge Claude Z. Luse took the case of C. E. Shano, trustee in bankruptcy, against The Bank of Athens out of the hands of a U. S. district court jury Tuesday morning, and instructed Foreman George C. Flynn to return a verdict from the jury in favor of the defendant bank.

The verdict found no cause of action against the bank on grounds that its officials did not know that Henry M. Brown, a former Athens shoe merchant was insolvent at the time he paid a $2400 debt to the bank. Shano sued the bank on behalf of other creditors of Brown's.

The board granted the city of Washburn a loan of $5,700, and also a loan of $2,500 for the general fund of the city.

State Inheritance Taxes for Quarter Total $152,750

Inheritance taxes in Wisconsin during the quarter ending Oct. 1, amount to $152,750, the tax commission announces. his is the lowest amount for two years, but with large returns expected during the present quarter and those following before the fiscal year ends June 30, it is estimated by the commission that the tax will equal $1,000,000.

Returns from the tax during the first 10 days of the present quarter have amounted to as much as the returns during the entire last quarter. A number of other large estates are expected to increase the amounts materially. Should payment be made on the Schlessinger estate, the commission is of the opinion that nearly $1,200,000 will be returned from this single estate. The new rates, double those now applied to inheritances, will not affect estates of persons who died prior to July 20, 1921.

Crushed stone and water —and a machine to mix them

THAT is Colt Carbide Lighting-and-Cooking reduced to its simplest terms. And what a wonderful combination! The Colt machine brings carbide (crushed stone) and water together, producing a marvelous gas.

This gas produces the hottest cooking-flame known, and a light that is seemingly a miniature of that great orb that rises in the east and sinks in the west.

Cook and Illuminate with a Colt

The Colt Carbide Lighting-and-Cooking Plant drops a handful of carbide intermittently into a self-contained tank of plain, ordinary water. The water releases the gas from the impregnated stone, and there you are!

There is no waste. The Colt machine shuts off automatically as you draw upon it for fuel and light. The carbide residue is slaked lime, good for fertilizer.

Picture a cool, sweet kitchen, even in sweltering summer, made possible by carbide fuel for the gas-range, the hot-plate and the flat-iron.

Picture your house, barns, outbuildings and driveways a blaze of radiant glory in the pitch black of the country night. And the little old Colt machine making gas as you need it, with the ease and dignity of the old-fashioned windmill!

You want to know what it costs and all about it. We'll tell you gladly, if you'll just send us your name and address on a postcard. Do that.

"BUSINESS IS GOOD"

On every hand we hear that business is dead, and that there are dark days ahead. We hear the cry so much that we unconsciously believe it.

Think of the misfortune, misery and depression that the rest of the world is in, and then give thanks for our good fortune.

Spread the propaganda of success—not of failure.

SHOW WINDOWS IN MADISON DURING THE FALL EXPOSITION

The Fall Exposition

A HOWLING SUCCESS

The idea was conceived last summer by Art Knisley, advertising manager of the Burdick and Murray store. He is also a member of the Madison Association of Display Men, an organization composed of window trimmers, advertising and merchandise men employed by the leading mercantile establishments of the city. It was probably the outgrowth of the then proposed plan for the Chicago Pageant of Progress, also suggested by an advertising man as a scheme to bolster up business at a critical time when ordinary methods had failed.

The plan was discussed among the members of the local association in attendance at the national association's convention in St. Paul in June. On their return, the proposition was put before the local body and accepted subject to the approval of the merchants, who quickly saw its value as a sales promotion plan to get fall business started early.

Not having a fund to defray expenses for advertising and incidentals necessary to put over on a large scale, the Display Men's Association received the co-operation of the Association of Commerce which, thru the secretary of the Trade Extension Committee of the Retail Merchants' Division, which sponsored the movement succeeded in raising about two thousand dollars through the help of the various committee chairmen and volunteer workers who called on practically every merchant in each line of business. Altogether there were about one hundred fifty business concerns or individuals who contributed from three to forty-five dollars each. Most of the downtown stores as well as many of those in the outlying districts cooperated to make the Exposition a success.

The Theater

AT THE ORPHEUM.

Miss Mary Boland, remembered by local theatergoers as leading lady with John Drew on his several visits to Madison, will be the feature attraction on the bill which opens tomorrow night. Miss Boland has been a prominent leading woman for a number of years. She was a member of the late Charles Frohman company and for six consecutive seasons was assigned to play the leading feminine roles with John Drew. Miss Boland's supporting company is an exceptionally good one. It includes J. Barney Sherry, one of the most popular film favorites. Henry Pemberton, Gertrude Fowler and others.

AT THE STRAND

Mabel Julienne Scott in "No Woman Knows," a motion picture taken from Edna Ferber's well known story "Fanny Herself," will be the attraction at the Strand theater for four days starting Wednesday.

Fanny is a typical American girl, although an odd mixture of bookworm and tom-boy. Her parents own a small drygoods and notions store in Winnebago, Wis. The father dies, leaving the mother to run the business. She and Fanny scrimp and save so that the son, Theodore, can study the violin in Europe.

This boy breaks his mother's heart by marrying a music hall dancer in Vienna. When the mother dies, Fanny, through anger and realization of her futile years of sacrifice, breaks away from her home and becomes a highly efficient business woman—the head of a department in a Chicago mail-order house.

Her soul is constantly torn between two forces, the materialistic and the spiritual. Fenger, the genius-like executive of the mail-order house, spurs her to material success. Heyl, her boyhood playmate, and now a brilliant newspaper man, tries to persuade her to let her spiritual side—the old Fanny, herself—come to the surface again.

Fanny becomes herself again when her brother Theodore returns from Europe with his baby daughter. His wife had run away. Fanny takes him in, puts him on his feet, and, with Fenger's help, arranges for his American debut. It is a great success. Then he disappears—to go back to his wife again.

This is the last straw for Fanny. Her better nature is again submerged in business fatalism. She forgives Fenger for certain unwelcome attentions towards her and is on the point of runing away with him, despite his invalid wife, when Heyl finally is victorious in his fight to make her give in to her better impulses.

There will also be shown a "Snub" Pollard comedy.

Third Music Memory Contest

(A movement to acquaint Madison with the best music, through a contest in naming selections from hearing them. Open to everyone without fee or restrictions.)

Sixth Selection—For week beginning October 17.

Songs My Mother Taught Me, by Anton Dvorak

(Born in Bohemia in 1841, died in Prague in 1904.)

The many admirers of the Largo from the New World Symphony, which was in our Second Music Memory Contest, will be glad to become acquainted with another beautiful melody by Dvorak. Among this composer's many beautiful sons there is none more deservedly popular than this very characteristic product of his art freighted with the pathos and melancholy that we associate with the Slavic peasant.

The story of the life of Anton (really Antonin) Dvorak (pronounced dvor-zhahk) at once explains his limitations and emphasizes the originality of his genius. His father was a butcher and innkeeper, and the boy, his ambition roused by the strolling musicians who used to play at the inn, has his first lessons in singing and violin—playing from the village schoolmaster. His progress as remarkable, but it was long before he could gain his father's consent to let him enter on a musical career, and when the 16 year old lad was finally sent to Prague for further study, the remittances from home soon ceased, and Anton was forced to earn his own way. This he did by playing in orchestras for scant pay.

But though his means allowed neither the purchase of scores for study, nor even a piano, he kept steadily on with his composing, and in 1873 achieved his first success with a patriotic cantata and some orchestral works. Four years later he was able to pay some of his latest work before Brahms, who was delighted, and whose encouragement led to the publication of some Slavic Dances, which speedily made him famous. By this time, however, he was a mature man with his style and mental processes definitely fixed.

Thus it will be seen that Dvorak went through his entire formative period without any regular study under teachers, without constructive criticism, and with no guidance whatever save his own native talent and his practical experience as orchestra player. It is natural, then, that he is least effective in those styles which call for a fixed and classical form, and most at his ease when he is free to let his imagination take its own untrammeled course.

His Chief Characteristics

The qualities which have won him his large group of admirers are his inexhaustible wealth of melodic invention, and a rich variety of coloring. There is in all his works a certain unexpectedness which doubtless results from his lack of formal training, but despite all technical faults, no one can refuse to yield to the fresh charm with which the composer invests his ideas. He has left us five great symphonies, including the familiar "New World Symphony" (resulting from his three years' residence in New York) many songs, several operas, in which his lighter vein is prominent, and two choral masterpieces, his "Stabat Mater" and "The Spectre's Bride."

Dvorak's songs date largely from his earlier period, when he was strongly under the influence of gypsy music. So we find in them languishing melody, plaintive harmony, varied rhythm, and frequent embellishments. These qualities are finely exemplified in the gipsy-melody called "Songs My Mother Taught Me." The thought content is of the slightest—as his mother used to shed tears when she taught him the old songs, so he sheds them now when he teaches his own children. On this slender framework Dvorak has woven a beautiful fabric of tonal beauty. The piano part is in six-eight time, the first two bars being syncopated, and the bass syncopated throughout; a double grace-note is a persistent feature, and there is a suggestion of the opening notes of the song. In the ninth bar the solo voice enters, singing in two-four time against the six-eight time in the accompaniment which is consistently syncopated. The result of this combination of rhythms is a dreamy vagueness of line, as different from the clear-cut outline of a Schubert song as a pastel painting is different from a line engraving.

Like a Folk Song

The song is a masterly example of the art by which a by which a great composer can take the simplest material—the air of the song is like that of a folk song,—save for the last few bars of the second stanza—and weave them into structures of a beauty that appeals to the most fastidious taste. The pianissimo postlude is a delicate echo of prelude and interlude, but whereas these terminate in a minor chord, the final phrase quietly passes over into the major mode, and stys there. The music induces a spirit of quiet and reminiscence, entirely in keeping with the idea of a mature man musing over the moving folk songs of his country which have been sung by his mother to him and which he in turn sings to his children.

(Note:—Explanatory notes on the five proceding selections will be found in Wednesday papers of the past five weeks. Material on the seventh selection, Rakoczy March, will be printed in next Wednesday's paper. Copies of all issues may be found at the newspaper office.

Billy Whiskers

By Frances Montgomery

"Well, I declare," said Billy as he saw the gypsy woman bathe the little boy in the walnut juice. "I wonder what she will do next! If she goes to cut off his beautiful golden curls, which I suppose she will, I will run down and butt her into the tub of dye. I think I had better go near in case I am needed in a hurry."

When Billy reached a thick bush behind the boy, from which place he could see everything that was going on, he was horrified to find that instead of cutting off the boy's curls she had dipped them into a bowl of dye and now his golden curls were a jet black. The dye was running down his face in streaks; some had rolled into his eyes and made them smart which caused him to cry piteously.

"There, Sonny, don't cry," said the gypsy woman, "I'll wipe it out and when I get you all fixed I'll give you a big red apple and a mirror to look at your self. Then you can see how pretty you look with lovely black curls and yellow skin instead of those homely yellow curls and putty-colored skin."

"My mama will scold you when she comes to get me. She don't like black curls; she likes yellow ones better."

"I thought I heard a step," said the woman.

It was Billy, who in his indignation had stuck his head too far through the bushes.

The black hair and brown skin had changed the looks of the little fellow so that I doubt if his own mother would have recognized him at the first glance. The rest of the day he played by the river bank making mud pies and throwing stones within sight of the gypsy woman's tent.

Toward dusk a gentleman came riding furiously into camp with his horse's sides covered with sweat and flakes of foam. The minute the gypsy woman saw him she ran to the river, grabbed up the little boy and disappeared into the woods, and while the gentleman was talking to one of the gypsy men, Billy followed the gypsy woman and the boy to see what she was going to do with him.

The woman ran swiftly through the woods until she came to a path that led up the side of the mountain. This she followed and though by this time she was out of breath from running and carrying the heavy boy, she did not stop, but kept right on, up and up, around the curves and bends until she came to a large ledge of rock, along which she ran until she came to a little cave, half hid by overhanging boughs and loose stones. The latter she scraped away with her hands until she had made a hole large enough to crawl through.

By this time the child was screaming with fright and struggling to free himself from the gypsy woman's arms. She paid not the least heed to his screams but stuck a gag into his mouth, tied his hands and feet securely, shoved him into the cave, scooped the stones over the opening and fled back down the mountain path the way she had come. From her high position on the mountain side, the gypsy woman had a good view of the camp and as she ran a sight met her eyes which made her tremble.

(But you will have to wait until tomorrow to see what it was she saw.)

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I had been keeping company with a boy friend and I quit him. I know he was very sorry. I am sorry now. Do you think I ought to write and tell him to come back, or ought he to ask me if he can come back?

BROWN EYES.

You made your choice and now you should stick to it. You can show by a cordial way of speaking that you still like him. Then if he wants to he will ask to come back.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl nineteen years old. I was deeply in love with a boy the same age. He very often expressed his love for me and said that he could never live without me, and I believed him. When I went with other boys he always seemed to get angry.

One day he saw me with a boy and he got awfully angry and we decided to quit. Do you think he really loved me and meant what he said, or was he just wanting to fool me and afterwards have fun out of it?

He has written me several letters lately and I think he wants to go back with me. What do you think I should do? Please tell me what you think about a boy who does this way? I am worried and at loss to know what to do.

HEART-BROKEN.

The young man is not trying to make a fool of you. I can see from what you say that he loves you too much to want you to go with other young men. Unless he loves you enough to ask you to marry him and to be engaged he has no right to demand that you give up other young men. Since he is showing a renewed interest in you, I would advise you to let him come back if you care for him. He should understand, however, that you do not believe in going with one person exclusively unless you are engaged.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen and go with a boy whom I like very well. Most people have a bad opinion of him and several of my friends delight in telling me mean things about him. I know he is mean, but I know some things they say are untrue. I usually know the things they tell me before they say anything, but they hurt my feelings very much.

My parents don't like him, but after I know as much, and I expect more about him than the people who are always telling me these things and know him to be all right to go with, should I go with him?

WORRIED.

At the age of sixteen you should abide by the advise of your parents. If you tell them about the young man's good points and that you believe you can do him good and know he will not harm you, they may be willing to let you keep him as your friend. You should help him to realize that he must try to be good and kind so that people will respect him. It is not fair for him to do as he pleases, gaining the ill-will of people, and then expect you to risk your reputation by keeping him as a friend.

Classical Music Lasting Says Gordon in Talk

"The difference between popular and classical music is not, as a small boy once said, that a popular tune has melody and a classical one does not, but that a popular tune is hummed along the line of least resistance and is soon forgotten while classical music grows in popularity and is not forgotten," said Philip Gordon in his recital before the class in musical appreciation at the university.

"Some popular music," he said "is a direct growth from the compositions of great masters, and so has a substantial melody which is more lasting. Examples of this are 'Irene' from 'Castle of Dreams' by Chopin, and I'm Always Chasing Rainbows from Fantasie Impromptu also by Chopin.

"The victrola is but a very fine imitation of voice, violin, or other work of artists, but it is up to the piano to preserve the real work of the artist."

Science Can Now End Corns

Such Troubles Are Out of Date —Millions Know This Now

A famous expert, years ago, solved the whole corn problem.

The method is Blue-jay—the plaster or the liquid. It stops pain instantly. Soon the whole corn gently loosens and comes out.

Now folks who pare or pad corns do themselves injustice. So do users of old methods, harsh and crude.

Blue-jay is modern. It is approved by authorities. It is easy, simple, quick and sure.

Just apply it and forget it, and watch what becomes of the corn. After that, you will never let a corn pain twice.

Reduced Freight Rates Authorized On Commodities

Shipping Tariff is Lower On Cement, Lime, Salt, Coal and Hides

Reduction in freight rates on certain commodities shipped within the state are being authorized by the railroad commission, upon request of producers and jobbers, C. D. Secheverell, secretary, announced today. A cut from 5 to 25 cents a ton on distance rates charged for shipping sugar beets, was approved this week.

Other commodities that can now be shipped more cheaply than before action by the state commission are cement, lime, salt, logs, paper, hard coal, and hides.

The cost of shipping hard coal to points within the state has been cut nine and one half cents a ton from Sheboygan and Milwaukee to Janesville, Madison, and other southern Wisconsin cities. A reduction of 20 per cent has been approved by the commission for commodity rates on the electric line running from Milwaukee to Sheboygan.

Rates on packing house products are declared to have been materially reduced from Madison to Milwaukee, Kenosha, and other lake ports. Reductions have also been approved on by-products of the packing industry. Other cuts in freight costs are contemplated.

Says Railroads Will Try to Operate in Strike

CHICAGO—In the event the threatened railroad strike is called the roads are prepared to "do our utmost to move necessities, utilizing to the fullest possible extent all the man power available," Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, declared today in an address. Mr. Markham said the present transportation tangle was due to the fact that 99 public bodies have a hand in fixing the rules, income and expenses of the roads and that they have no voice in the expenditure of more than 97 per cent of their operating costs.

Gives Dollars Away At Hill's Store Today

"Dollar Day" has a special significance in the window display at Hill's Shop for ladies. There is a showing of articles from every department of the store and each article has a dollar bill pinned on it. Within the store purchasers have been thronging all day and this morning the clerks report a total number of approximately 4,000 people who have taken advantage of one of the best "dollar day" bargains offered. With each $10 purchase a dollar bill is given away. The display was one of the most attractive and startling in the city and has caused many favorable comments.

Illinois Scouts Get Little Dope On Badger Team

Wisconsin Still in 1,000 Per Cent Column; Iowa's Schedule Easy

CONFERENCE STANDINGS

	W	L	Pct.
Chicago	2	0	1.000
Wisconsin	1	0	1.000
Iowa	1	0	1.000
Ohio State	1	0	1.000
Minnesota	1	1	.500
Illinois	0	1	.000
Purdue	0	1	.000
Northwestern	0	3	.000
Michigan	0	0	.000
Indiana	0	0	.000

Two Illinois' scouts, who sat in the press stand at Evanston, "to get the dope on Wisconsin," went home Saturday night without a great deal of information regarding the Badgers. Richard's men not once were forced to open up with any of the plays on which they had practiced during the week previous, and on the contrary found it clear sailing through Northwestern's forward wall with straight football.

The Badgers' 27 to 0 win over the Purple on Saturday was their first conference victory of the season. Today they stand in the 1000 per cent column along with Iowa, Chicago and Ohio State. Michigan and Indiana have not yet played a conference game. The Hawkeyes' spectacular defeat of Illinois Saturday, together with their comparative easy schedule for the remaining part of the season, makes them a likely candidate for the Western Conference championship.

Wisconsin, to win the flag, must defeat Illinois Saturday, and win over Minnesota, Michigan and Chicago. These teams are four of the strongest in the conference. Iowa, having defeated Illinois, has only one real contest remaining—and the possibility of that being difficult is doubtful—with Minnesota. After a rest on Saturday, the Hawkeyes meet Purdue, Minnesota, Indiana and Northwestern. If Wisconsin should win all of her remaining games, she would be a preferable candidate for the championship honors.

With the Illniois game only a few days away, the question arises whether Richards will retain the line in its present form or whether he will continue his policy of shifting until absolute satisfaction comes from the play of Wisconsin linemen. All dope on the probable lineup was upset when the Badger eleven took the field last Saturday. Christianson at left guard in place of Bomm who played right tackle, and Nelson at the other guard produced a radically different combination from that which played in the two preliminary games. Hehlfeld was on the side-lines for a great portion of the game until he relieved Nelson.

Although the Badger line broke through and hurried Purple punts and passes, there is still room for improvement, especially in charging. The forward wall played in much better style than it had in the South Dakota and Lawrence games, and with this gradual improvement evident, it should be at the top of its game for the Illinois contest next Saturday and the Minnesota Homecoming game on October 29. In Illinois, Wisconsin meets a rival noted for the hard plunging backs, Jack Crangle, Don Peden, and Herrig hit the line with obvious force and power. Crangle will be the hardest man to stop in the line. He made the all-western team last year on the strength of his line plunging ability at fullback. If the Badger line maintains the pace it set in the Purple contest, however, it will hold Illinois backs for "no gains"many times during the annual Sucker-Badger contest next Saturday.

ROUNDY'S CORNER

This Illinois game recalls the days when the Badgers had to battle the Suckers with men like Clark and Pouge and Macomber in their lineup.

* * *

In one game Clark and Halas of Illinois played against the Badgers with their jaws broken. Halas had his broken in two places and both had on a special head gear, and both played the whole game and were stars defeating the Badgers.

* * *

They claim that football is advancing in leaps but the old timers have it all over the present day kickers. That department never will get up to the olden day kickers.

* * *

Pat O'Dea, the former Wisconsin great kicker, has a record in a game of a drop kick 63 yards against N. W., and it stood till a young chap back in 1915 by the name of Payne.

* * *

And there was Haxal of Princeton who kicked a place against Yale in 1882 that sailed 65 yards between the goal post for a counter. If they get one now from the 40-yard mark the feat is world wide.

* * *

Pat O'Dea could stand on his own 20-yard line and punt across the opponent's goal every time. Half of the present day players could not catch one out of his ten punts, they are so high and came down with such force.

* * *

An eastern player last Saturday bit a man's ear in the game. Chances are they will take time out for lunch next time he plays.

* * *

Don't you remember away back in '95 (I don't), when Otis Skinner watched Wisconsin play football and Richards Kull and Prye were on the team.

* * *

And don't you remember when Lake Forest, a little hamlet, beat Wisconsin 14 to 6.

* * *

And don't you remember back in '95 when it took Illinois only 3 minutes to cut Richard's eye and Trotman's head open and lay Prye low and score a touchdown. What do you mean that the game is faster now.

* * *

And don't you remember that it took two shoe strings to lace up one of Kull's shoes, his ankles were so big.

And don't you remember how Norsky Larson would play much better in the second half than in the first, and you all must know the reason.

* * *

And don't you remember that in '98, when the first auto came to the game here, the game was stopped till everybody went over and touched it or sat in it.

* * *

And don't you remember that everybody at the university and town people would talk about it all week if some team made half an inch over Art Curtis in a game.

* * *

And don't you remember in '95 when, due to some misunderstanding, the special train pulled out and left the fans in the depot while it went north to the Gopher game. And they all went over to the St. Paul yards and hired a switch engine and a box car to take them to Portage.

* * *

And they caught the fast mail out of there and arrived on the field at Minnesota as the ball was kicked off for Wisconsin by Karel and the score Wisconsin 14; Minnesota 10.

Engineers Given Grid Challenge By U. W. Law Team

Football Game to Benefit Memorial Union is Purpose

The Law school challenges the College of Engineering to a football game to avenge certain grievances set forth in a legal summons drafted yesterday. The contest it to be staged at a date to be decided upon later if the challenge is accepted by the engineers. All proceeds from the event will be given to the Memorial Union fund.

Alleged injuries suffered by the Law school from the Engineers' welcome and the activities of the College of Engineering in certain parades are mentioned in the challenge. It is to atone for these before the public that the football game is proposed.

The document of the Law school follows:

The Summons

The Varsity Engineers are hereby summoned to appear and answer to the Lawyers of a plea of Wager of Battle. The said Lawyers by Blackstone, their attorney, complain for that whereas, the said Lawyers now are good, true, honest, just and faithful subjects of this institution and as such have always behaved and conducted themselves and until the committing of the several grievances by the said defendants as hereinafter mentioned were always reputed, esteemed and accepted by and amongst all their neighbors to whom they have been in any wise known, to be persons of good name, fame, character and dignity. And whereas, also, the said plaintiffs hath never been guilty, or until the time of the committing of the several grievances by the said defendants as hereinafter mentioned, been suspected to have been guilty of snobbishnss, physical inferiority, egotism, or any other such heinous crime.

Yet the said defendants well knowing the premises, but greatly envying the happy state and position of the said plaintiffs and contriving wickedly, maliciously, unlawfully, and unjustly intending to injure the said plaintiffs in their good name, character, fame, reputation and dignity and to bring them into public scandal infamy and disgrace with and amongst all their fellow students, and to cause it to be suspected and believed by these students that the said plaintiffs have been guilty of the aforementioned crimes; to subject them to the pains and scorn of student sentiment; o vex, harass, oppress, impoverish and wholly ruin the said plainiffs hereofore, to-wit: at the University of Wisconsin in certain boisterous and well known, till spirited outbursts of engineering mirth, of and concerning said plaintiffs in the presence and hearing of divers good and worthy students in the presence of the last mentioned parties maliciously, crudely, uncouthly, and unjustly uttered, blurted of and concerning the said plaintiffs and scandalous, malicious, unbecoming and unjust words following, that is to say,

"Well, Well, Well,
Is that the Law School
O Hell."—

And as a still further cause of action the plaintiffs allege that on a certain great day of pomp and celebrity, to-wit: the 17th day of March, popularly known as St. Patricks day, the defendants wickedly, and maliciously in an attempt to belittle the dignity and position of the plaintiffs in a certain vulgar, crude and unbecoming maner did arrange a parade consisting of various mechanical conrtivances, to-wit: six typical morbid engineers drawing one hearse which therein lay one casket labeled, "The Law School."

By means of the committing of such grievances by the said defendants as aforesaid, the plaintiffs hath been and are greatly injured in their good name, fame, reputation and brought into public scorn and disgrace with and amongst their fellow students, and have by reason of the coimmitting of the said grievances a cause of action for which they seek relief in the following manner, to-wit: that the eleven best, strongest, huskiest, bravest, and MOST BLOODTHIRSTY "PLUMBERS" representing the above defendants, appear in Pig Skin court Randall Field Circuit spiritually and physically prepared before the unsuspecting, worthy, and defrauded student body to atone at the hands of the said plaintiffs in forty minutes of battle, commonly known as "Football."

Whereupon, if the said defendant do not appear in open court upon the day to be set, and of which they will be duly notified, judgment will be rendered against them; all plaintiffs rights will be vindicated, and the Engineers will forever "PULL IN THEIR NECKS."

Subscribed and sworn before me this 19th day of October, A. D. 1921.

First Games In East Spill Dope Of Grid Season

Chicago-Princeton Tilt to Be Week's Biggest Attraction

Last Saturday marked the official beginning of football throughout the entire east. Several of the battles were hard-fought and several of them had much bearing on the intercollegiate supremacy of the east.

The leading game of the day was the Navy-Tiger clash which took place at Annapolis. The Princeton team was considerably weakened by the loss of Lourie and Garrity, two stars who were on the hopital list. This fact, combined with a 50 yard penalty at the very beginning of the game, seemed to dishearten the Tiger warriors and they emerged from the fray on the short end of a 13 to 0 score.

Georgia Upset Dope

The dope was somewhat upset when Georgia not only held Harvard to a three point margin, but also crossed the Crimson goal for a touchdown. This was the first time that the eastern champ's goal had been scored upon this year. Harvard scored 10 points during the first half before the Georgians got over their stage-fright. After the beginning of the second period, the Southerners opened up with an attack that netted them a touchdown and prevented their opponents from so much as threatening to score. Had the Georgia team hit their stride earlier in the game, it is probable that the outcome of the struggle might have been in their favor.

The balance of the eastern teams are fairly true to form; the Army defeating Wabash and Yale humbling Williams. Wabash played a good game with the exception of the third quarter, during which time the Army scored all three of their touchdowns. Although Yale experienced little difficulty in gaining ground, Williams' eleven, by means of cleverly executed forward passes, worked the ball close to the Blue goal on a number of occasions. Yale held in the crises, however, and the final score was 23 to 0 in its favor.

Cornell Scores 114 Points

The worst defeat of the day was the one administered to Western Reserve by Cornell. The final score was 114 to 0.

It is unusual to see Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, in fact, all of the western followers supporting Chicago, but that is what is happening this week. These same supporters were somewhat disappointed at the result of the Princeton-Navy game last week. If the Maroons win from the Tigers, they will not have the satisfaction of having won from the strongest team in the east, and, if they lose, the sting of defeat will be worse than if Coach Roper's eleven were the peers of their section.

At any rate, the above clash will be the keystone of the large number of vital struggles that take place on Saturday. The Tiger team will be intact by the end of the week, and are bound to be a hard eleven to beat. The Maroons are a team of possibilities. Thus far this season their performance has been erratic. It is possible that the outcome of the contest will be based on the passing ability of the winners; at least, if the Maroons are victorious, such will have been the case, as the Tigers have a heavy veteran line of unlimited charging ability.

Weather Delays U. W. Tennis Tournament

The rainy weather of the last few days has made it necessary to temporarily abandon the regular schedule in the all-university tennis tournament.

Barwig, Bennett, Pamperin, Tredwell, and four others, who have not as yet been announced, are the ones who will play in the semi-finals and the finals and honors in the singles.

The following are the pairs who are leading in the race for honors in the doubles: Tredwell and Gotfredson; Edimann and Evans; Stegeman and Fitzgerald; Moulding and Wright; Stehr and Henka; Hentzen and Bennett.

A. J. Schinner is Named Member of Boxing Commission

Gov. Blaine on Tuesday appointed Arthur J. Schinner, sport writer, a member of the state boxing commission for five years, succeeding Walter H. Liginger, ending eight years of hard and faithful service that Liginger has given to the work. Liginger was appointed a member of the board and elected its chairman shortly after the Hedding law went into effect in 1913. Under his guidance, boxing became a recognized sport in Wisconsin. The position carries no recompense.

Mr. Schinner brings into the office 15 years of athletic experience. He was formerly a member of the Marquette football team, and today holds the midwest amateur handball championship. Working in co-operation with Messrs. Hart and Morter, it is to be hoped that the three can maintain the high standard already set. The commission meets on Monday to elect a chairman. Sentiment favors Mr. Morter.

Governor Acts to Stop Gibbons-O'Dowd Contest

OKLAHOMA CITY—Gov. J. B. A. Robertson on Tuesday ordered the sheriff of Tulsa county to take such steps as may be necessary to prevent the Mike Gibbons-Mike O'Dowd middleweight boxing contest in Tulsa next Tuesday, warning the promoters it will not be permitted in Oklahoma.

"Both Gibbons and O'Dowd are professional prize fighters and are contenders for championship honors in the class, and so regarded by the sporting world," Gov. Robertson said. "The affair can not be construed as a 'boxing contest' in any sense of the word and will not be permitted in Oklahoma.

Rankin Winner Of $2,500 Grand Circuit Purse

McDonald Drives Mare to Victory in 2:14 Trot at Atlanta

ATLANTA, Ga.—Jeannette Rankin, chestnut mare, driven by McDonald, swept all competition aside in the feature event of Tuesday's Grand circuit races, taking the 2:14 trot in straight heats, and stepping off the final mile in 2:05. McDonald had a good lead in each heat in this event, which carried a purse of $2,500.

The other races were in decided contrast, for each one was hotly contested, especially the 2:18 trot, in which there were nine starters and which it took four heats to decide. Good time was made in the first three heats, but in the extra mile, Harvest Horn, piloted by Osborne, won from Lady Byng, driven by Thomas in 2:14¼.

Mendelsohn Signs to Meet Pinkey Mitchell

MILWAUKEE—Prospects of a Pinkey Mitchell-Johnny Mendelsohn fight are picking up. Frank Mulkern on Tuesday signed Mendelsohn to a set of articles for a scrap on Nov. 21, and Mulkern on Wednesday will try to get the Mitchell signature to the same agreement. Given proper financial inducements, Pinkey says he will take on the Ghetto favorite, but insists that Mendelsohn is not to get all the best of it in the melon cutting.

Wolverines To Meet Ohio With Long Side List

Four injured players, only one of whom will be able to play against Ohio State next Saturday, have caused Michigan championship stock to go down several points over the week-end. Usher, Banks, Wilson, and Kirk are on the hospital list, and with the possible exception of Kirk, none are expected to be in shape for the Buckeye game. In addition to these men definitely out of play, Roby, Capt "Duke" Dunne, and Steketee are not in good shape, and it is reported that Coach Yost will be forced to employ many substitutes against the Ohioans.

Ohio is Strong

In view of the strong game which Ohio put up when it sent the Gophers back into their hole on the short end of a 27 to 0 score, Coach Yost said Michigan could hardly be expected to win Saturday with so many men on the injured list. The Michigan Aggies, although walloped by their sister college, 30 to 0, played an aggressive game with much hard tackling. The Aggies outplayed Michigan throughout the first half, and Johnson's punting coupled with Graves' line plunging kept the oval in Wolverine territory during the first two periods. Banks, quarterback, and Usher, fullback, failed to score for Michigan. Kipke performed some senesational work to count three touchdowns while Goebel made the fourth and Knode drop-kicked from the 27-yard line for three more points.

Have Stiff Practice

In its first practice after the Minnesota contest, Ohio scontinued its aggressive style of play. The Buckeyes engaged in a short scrimmage and snapped into every play with championship zest. Blair, who was declared by doctors to be out until the last of the season, appeared in a suit although his wrenched leg is not in the best shape. Roy Rife, 1918 halfback, was out of the uniform and in punting practice kicked 65 and 70 yards. Hoge Workman, who is ineligible, helped Wilce with the Buckeye backfield men.

Babe Ruth May Form Own Team If Landis Acts

Swat King to Play Ball in 1922; Will Defy Baseball Head

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—Babe Ruth declared on Tuesday he would continue to play baseball next year, even if Judge Landis barred him from the major leagues. Ruth indicated that he would organize his own independent team and engage in exhibition games all over the country.

When informed that Judge Landis, high commissioner of baseball, might suspend him from the leagues for a year, Ruth said:

"I will continue to play baseball next year, that's a cinch. If I organize my own team, however, it won't be a team of outlaws. I won't have anything to do with those former Chicago White Sox players who were mixed up in that world series scandal. But my team would be formed of good, clean fellows, players who are straight, but who have jumped from the American league."

Miss Stella Johnson spent the week end in Freeport.

News of the Markets

Report for October 19.

Wheat Develops Strength During Session Opening

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Wheat prices developed considerable strength today, selling pressure being much less in evidence than during the two days preceding. Profit-taking on the part of recent short sellers helped the market to rally. Besides opinion was popular that a reaction was to be expected after the drastic decline which had taken place of late. Opening quotations which ranged from ¼ lower to 1¼ advance with December 1.06@1.06 and May 1.10½ to 1.11 were followed by a decided upturn all around.

Subsequently support was lacking and the market declined to new low record prices for the season. Lloyd George's speech on hnployment was a bearish factor. The close was heavy 1¼@2c net lower; Dec. 1.03½@¾ and May 1.08¼@⅜.

CORN — Corn rose with wheat, opening unchanged to ¼ cent higher, Dec. 46@⅛ and then scored a moderate general gain.

Later corn declined when wheat turned downgrade. The close was weak ⅛@⅜@½c net lower; Dec. 45½@⅝.

OATS— Oats after starting unchanged to ⅛ cent lower Dec. 32⅛@¼ went upward for all deliveries.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were moderately strong.

Domestic and foreign oils also were higher. Houston, Royal Dutch and Mexican Petroleum were most favored. Old Method Of Charity Is Held Inefficient Today

Miss Jeannette Davis of Welfare Body Outlines Views

There are two types af charity, the old Good Samaritan type, in which the donor puts his hand into his pocket, pulls out a coin, gives it to the beggar and goes on his way; and the new type, which works through an association run by trained and efficient workers who seek to discover the fundamental needs of the beggar and to enable him to meet these needs.

Miss Jeanette Davis, secretary of the Public Welfare association, believes that the latter kind of charity, which is the work of the association, is the one to which Madison people will want to contribute and they will have the opportunity to do so next Saturday on the association's annual tag day.

Discussing the family relief work of the Public Welfare association today, Miss Davis pointed out that the purpose of this work is to put the needy family on a self-supporting basis.

"Take the family of John Jones, for instance," said Miss Davis, giving a fictitious name, for real names are never revealed by the association. "We heard that they were in great need. A worker was sent there. She found that the father was ill; that there was no money to buy food or fuel; that the children weren't properly and warmly clothed. We arranged to have the father, who was in the incipient stages of tuberculosis, sent to the sanitarium. We got warm clothes for the children; found work for the mother, and took the smaller children into our day nursery while she was at work. In six months the father had recovered and was again able to take care of his oCva?ilbOfmilydrodofmtheaacmfwy family. What good would $5 or $10 have done that family if nothing further could have been done for it?"

Among the types of service rendered by the association in its family work are: supervising families with sub-normal mothers; procuring nurses for confinement and emergency cases; administrating, upon appeal from the head of the family, the family finances, which in a number of cases has freed the family from debt in a comparatively short time; sending sick to the hospitals; procuring work for fathers of families; sending tuberculer parents or children where they could have the proper care; and the straightening of domestic difficulties.

Candidates For Barbers' License In Shaving Drill

No Cinch to Get Permit Under State Law; U. W. Students Apply

About 45 barbers seeking state licenses exhibited what they knew about the technique of shaving and haircutting Tuesday. They came from all over southern Wisconsin. Closely scrutinized by the barbers' examining board at the Elver House shop, each artisan displayed his skill.

A candidate for a license has to know reams about sanitation and to knowledge in his work.

A barber must know about the sterilizing of razors, brushes, combs, and other working tools, and the necessity for it in various operations. The use of clean towels on every customer is a rule that demands strict compliance. The old practice of using the same wet towel on successive patrons is practically done away with in Wisconsin shops as a result of state inspection.

Honing of razors, care of brushes and other tools, and many more trade practices come within the purview of the barber examiners in passing upon candidates. The candidates yesterday included several university studenas who desire to work at the trade in spare time to pay their way through school. Few lines of student employment pay as well as barbering.

The examining board Tuesday included William L. Smith, Milwaukee; Frank E. Zuehlke, Oshkosh, and Edward C. Puerner, Fond du Lac, the latter a state barber inspector, acting for A. L. Berens of Stevens Point as an examiner.

Combining an instinct for instruction with a voice of unusual beauty and power, Mrs. Glenore D. Caton is easily one of the best finds of the music school in some years in its efforts to build up a teaching staff of real strength. Mrs. Caton has behind her a series of successes on the concert stage that leave little doubt as to her ability in singing, and with a vast amount of training, her instruction is sure to be grounded on a solid foundation.

Mrs. Caton is a soprano—plain oprano, she says, for she sings with equal ease light lyrics and the more exacting arias from Wagner and Puccini, the dramatic writers. "I am quite catholic in my choice of songs," said Mrs. Caton yesterday, "and really enjoy singing both types. Sometime—a long way off, I hope—I may become accustomed to singing but one type of music, but now I enjoy singing everything I can find.

Mrs. Caton spent some time at the University of Illinois, where she was a member of the Chi Omega sorority. She has studied with Theodore Harrison, Chicago, and opera with Chauncey Earl Bryant. She has sung many times in concert, has appeared at the University of Michigan festival as Marguerite in the oratorio, "Faust," has appeared twice with the Apollo Club of Chicago, under Harrison Wild, and has sung with the Chicago Symphony. She has been soloist with the First Church of Christ Scientist in Oak Park, Ill. Mrs. Caton was admitted to the Chicago Opera school last summer, and gave up her work there in order to accept the teaching position in the university. At some later time, Mrs. Caton intends to re-enter the school.

In spite of a strenuous teaching schedule, Mrs. Caton intends to do some recital work, and she goes to Chicago on November 15 for a return engagement with the Windsor Park Woman's club. She also plans to give a Madison recital very shortly.

The Cincinnati Symphony orchestra which comes to Madison for a concert on November 1st is now in the 27th year of its activity and its history is one of constant growth. This orchestra, numbered among the very best of the country, has gained wide-spread publicity for Cincinnati and achieved for itself great distinction by reason of the magificent concerts given. Now under the leadership of Eugene Ysaye it has achieved a greatness second to none in the orchestral field. Students of the university and residents of the community look forward to the organization when it comes here under the auspices of the Madison Orchestral association.

Two concerts for the year are being arranged by the Girls' Glee club under the leadership of Miss Madeline Willman.

"We wish to make the club a vital factor," said Miss Willman. "The first concert to be given in January, we are already preparing. Since we meet twice a week instead of once as formerly for practise, we shall accomplish more and shall probably arrange an informal entertainment in the spring. We shall also furnish music for Y. W. C. A. vespers in the near future."

The Girls' Glee club is composed of 40 members, sixteen of whom have been lately elected. Practise hours are at 4:30 p. m. Monday and 12:30 p. m. Thursday of every week.

With a membership of 43, which is almost double that of last year, the University of Wisconsin Men's Glee club has outlined an ambitious program for the coming season.

To rival the noted Harvard Glee club which made an extensive tour of Europe during the summer is the goal of Prof. E. E. Swinney, who has directed the organization since 1918. During the war the Glee club was not in existence, and it was largely through the efforts of Mr Swinney that it has risen to its present strength and popularity.

More than half of the old members are back, and the large number of try-outs, totaling 75, this fall is indicative of the increased interest of university men in the Glee club. Two concerts are scheduled for Madison to be given Dec. 16 and March 24. A concert will be arranged in Chicago sometime in January.

The following from Tacoma, Wash., refers to Clarence Olsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Olsen, of Stoughton, who has been in the Klondyke country for a number of years: "Furs, ivorpy and curios, estimated worth $100,000, were obtained by the power schooner, Iskum in Siberia, where she touched at points not visited by an American boat for seven years. Capt. Clarence I. Olsen, master of the Iskum, said that when he visited Kolyma, northern Siberia, the communist authorities demanded his cargo of American goods and offered to pay in paper money. The certain declined and when it appeared that the communists intended to force acceptance, the boat sailed sea one dark night and escaped.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sollen, 215 West Jefferson st., also a daughter at the hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Olson of Pleasant Springs.

Rev. M. H. Hegge, pastor of the First Lutheran church, will perform the marriage ceremony Thursday afternoon at the parsonage on South Page street, for Miss Helma Olson, daughter of Mrs. Jensina Olson, and Martin Johnson son of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Johnson, Dunkirk avenue.

Standard Has Five Tanks

The Standard Oil company, which acquired various suitable corners for an oil station, have placed at all the garages of the city an oil tank, so that the expenditure for a station will not be necessary. During the past two weeks five oil tanks have been sunk and connected with the necessary piping. When there was a filling station placed on the Brown corner, where autoists could drive in and out on the other side and gas was sold cheaper than had been asked previously by local dealers, the Standard took the matter under consideration, the last move being the purchase of land on the corner of West Main and Page streets, from the J. C. Johnson estate. It had already bought from the S. L. Sheldrap estate and S. A. Peterson the First and East Main streets corner and the latter a corner on South Division street and East Jefferson. The story is that the Standard makes it a point to buy prominent street corners also in other cities. It looks as if there would be severe competition in the gasoline oil business at Stoughton for a year or two.

Barbers Examination

J. D. Lee, employed by William Hamlet, was in Madison yesterday attending the examination for license as a barber. He came to Stoughton from Indiana, but under the state law it is necessary for him to obtain a permit from the state board. He has been working under a journeyman's license heretofore.

Tickets Are On Sale For Oct. 29 Homecoming Hop

Non-dancers May Play Bridge—All Lathrop is Occupied

Ticket sale for the 1921 Homecoming ball, "The Autumn Prom," opens this morning, and all persons planning to attend the dance Saturday night, Oct. 29, are advised to make early reservations, as the number of couples will be limited, according to Arthur F. Marquette '22, chairman of the dance committee.

The tickets will be on sale at Morgan's, the University pharmacy, and the Park hotel, or may be secured at the desks of the university Y. M. C. A., Barnard hall, and Chadbourne hall. The presidents of the different fraternities and sororities will also have a supply of the pasteboards on hand. "Doc" Dorward '23, at B. 975, is in charge of the sale.

The entire third floor of Lathrop hall will be used for the dance. This permits the use of the concert room in addition to the gymnasium. Waxing and rubbing of the floor will be carried out in order to provide the smoothest possible surface for the dancers.

As a reception room for the alumni the parlors on the first floor have been secured. Here the alumni register will be placed in order that late arrivals may have a chance to sign it. Special places for each class to meet will be assigned and announced later.

As a special inducement to non-dancers and to couples who do not care to dance all evening, the committee has arranged to use the S. G. A. room for bridge games. It is hoped that a large number of people who enjoy playing bridge will take advantage of this new plan.

Elaborate plans for decorations are being made. In the gymnasium and concert room, novel lighting effects will be worked out, and shields, flags, and emblems will be used for trimming. Palms will be used on the stage, which will be occupied by the orchestra, and the parlors will be decorated with floral pieces.

Court Dancers To Hear Scores From Champaign Game

Guests at the court dance, to be given by members of Mortar Board Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22, will run no risk of acquiring the epithet "ten-hounds," since the progress of the game at Illinois will be relayed to the four houses in Sterling court, where the dance will be held, from the gymnasium as soon as the news comes in over the special wires leased by the Athletic board.

The four sororities on the court have donated the use of their houses for the Mortar Board dance, which is an annual affair with the purpose of raising money for the Mortar Board scholarship fund. The dance will be run on the jitney plan, ten cents for each dance.

Several popular campus jass troupes have donated their services for the afternoon, and four complete orchestras will vie with each other to tempt guests from house to house.

DASH'S COMBINED WITH COMFORT IN THIS FALL GARB

FIRST OCTOPUS FOR SALE ON CAMPUS TODAY

Critic Judges It Better Than Any Former Issue

The Octopus is upon us again!

Issuing forth in long wiggles from the roof of Bascom hall the spirit of Wisconsin bursts upon an astonished world. Very few of us were ever given the imagination of Heintz Rubel '22. If the Dean of Women had known about the lady's costume, she would probably have taken steps to have the spirit barrelled. But she didn't know, and today the spirit of Wisconsin delights the student world—portrayed on the cover of the Octopus.

Art Work Abundant

A word as to the art of this number. Last year's artists are back again, and several new ones have come to light. "Southern Pines" inspire Hub Townsend to a full page drawing of almost professional merit. Ken Fagg has a clever pen and ink of "The Practical Hunter," with the grizzly bending lovingly above him. The magazine is full of pictures and cartoons, all of which have a high standard of excellence.

Homecomings Featured

Among the high-spots is a "words and music" effect, the "Stage Settings of Famous Homecomings." These are not only described, but illustrated, by somebody too modest to sign his drawings, although they are among the most amusing in the book. With our own Homecoming so near in the offing, it is interesting to examine such a study as this of such historical homecomings as those of the Prodigal Son, Memelaus and Helen, Christopher Columbus, Charlie Chaplin, and last, as a fitting conclusion, the homecoming of the Wisconsin alumni.

Editorials Serious

The editorials are the only claim to seriousness that the book puts forth. They are written in a good-natured spirit, but with a good deal of wisdom, like a pill in a sugar coating.

A new feature is the high school page. It is really amazing with what sauvity these youngsters tell their very original jokes. The only word that can be used to describe them is "cute."

The magazine abounds with short jokes and poems. Clever little quips reach out from every page and tickle you in the ribs.

Millions of Fish Fry Planted in Streams

Upwards of 105,000,000 fish fry and fingerlings have been planted in Wisconsin streams and lakes so far this year, according to Brayton O. Webster, member of the conservation commission. Approximately 12,500,000 trout fry and fingerlings are included in this total. Some 70,000,000 pike fry; 400,000 bass fry; and 15,000,000 whitefish fry complete the total.

Senator Pat Harrison Divides The Sheep From The Goats

And has an illuminating word to say concerning Wisconsin's two sons in the Senate.

THE people will not understand the bewildering cross-currents which are tossing the revenue bill about in the United States Senate until they fix in their minds the identity and character of the various gentlemen playing the leading roles in the drama.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi performed a public service a few days ago when he described for the country the personnel of the groups and "blocs" taking opposing sides in the debate.

He identified Senators Penrose, Watson of Indiana, McCumber, Curtis, and the other "old guard" leaders as the group united in an effort to "put across" a tax bill laying the whole burden of the war debt and the running expenses of the Government on the mass of the people, who have been bled white by the profiteers the bill proposes to relieve from proper taxation.

In a second class, Senator Harrison catalogued Newberry, Dillingham, McLean, and the other "come along" Senators of the Republican majority who are standing by, prepared to vote "right" when the bill comes back from conference and is put up for final passage.

Harrison then turned his attention to the "aagricultural bloc" and did a masterful bit of characterization most illuminating to the country.

He made this tremendously significant fact exceedingly plain: that there are really two "agricultural blocs", and that the farmers and consumers of the country whose interests both "blocs" purport to serve can look to one of them for undying loyalty,—and to the other for betrayal.

In the "bloc" on whom the people can rely for faithful service, Harrison places La Follette, Norris, and one or two other progressives who have shown the courage to stand up under fire. In the "bloc" which is already dickering, trading, and compromising and preparing the way for a final betrayal of the farmers and consumers of the country whose interests both Kellogg, McCormick, Capper and their associates.

In biting phrase, Harrison paid his respects to the pseudo progressives, in the last named group who voted for the Esch-Cummins law,—which dealt a body blow to the farmers—and are now attempting to sell out the agricultural interests to Penrose, Watson, et al in the revenue bill.

"Oh, how the progressives of old have been supplanted by the progressives of today!" the speaker declared to a crowded Senate and a packed gallery.

> "La Follette, who sat on the Finance Committee for weeks and fought by the side of the Democratic members of that committee in the interest of the people to reduce taxes,—yes, he was in favor of retaining as a maximum a large surtax; but when this progressive element meets up at Senator Capper's house this former leader of progressiveism is forgotten.
> "The Senator from Idaho, Mr. Borah, and the Senator from California, Mr. Johnson, who were once known in this country as real progressives, have been supplanted by the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Lodge, and the Senator from Minnesota, Mr. Kellogg, and the Senator from Colorado, Mr. Nicholson, and the Senator from Nevada, Mr. Oddie, and those other Senators who formerly belonged to the reactionary group."

To Senator Capper, of Kansas, who shared with Senator McCormick of Illinois the honor of delivering the agricultural "bloc" to the "old guard", Senator Harrison referred as "the Senator from Kansas who filled high the festive board to receive these distinguished new progressives and agriculturists from Boston and Chicago."

It would have been well if the voters of Wisconsin could have been in the Senate galleries when Senator Harrison concluded his speech with parallel references to the two Senators from this state.

Referring to the original deflection of the "agricultural bloc" and its working agreement with the Democrats to force important changes in the bill, Senator Harrison said:

> "WHATEVER RELIEF MAY COME FROM IT—AND IT IS MUCH—IS DUE LARGELY TO THE EFFORTS OF THE SENIOR SENATOR FROM WISCONSIN, MR. LA FOLLETTE, WHO LABORED IN THE COMMITTEE WHILE OTHER REPUBLICANS WERE AROUND THE FESTIVE BOARD."

Senator Harrison then paid his respects to Senator Lenroot, who, he said "the other day became very angry because of the statement which was made by some Democratic Senator claiming credit for bringing about this coalition and these reforms. He (Lenroot) said:. 'I offered an amendment to this bill September 29.'

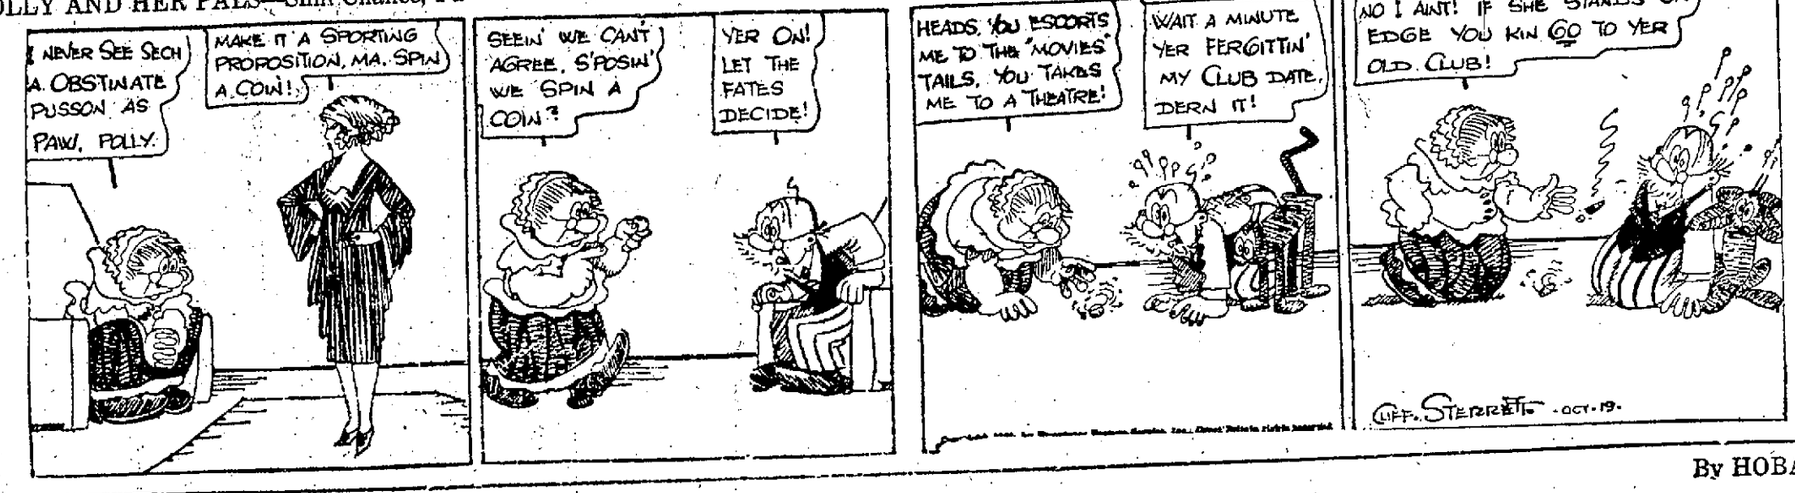

> "OH, YES; HE (LENROOT) OFFERED HIS AMENDMENT! MANY AMENDMENTS WERE OFFERED—BUT WE KNOW WHAT AMENDMENTS ARE SOMETIMES OFFERED FOR. WE KNOW THAT IT ENABLES A SENATOR TO GO BACK TO HIS PEOPLE AND SAY 'LOOK HERE WHAT I DID. I TRIED TO SERVE YOU AND OFFERED AN AMENDMENT.'"

This is one view of the comparative value of the services the people of Wisconsin are receiving from their two United States Senators during the present debate. Senator Harrison is a Democrat. He can hardly be charged with prejudice in favor of Senator La Follette. When Senator Lenroot was supporting the League of Nations after the war, voting to put the clamps on free speech during the war, and smoothing the path for the Esch-Cummins law, all of which President Wilson signed or endorsed, Senator La Follette was opposing every one of these infamous measures and denouncing their authors.

The readers of The Capital Times, therefore, can afford to ponder over Senator Harrison's estimate of Wisconsin's Senators and the character of the progressive groups represented by each, with confidence that his opinion is worth something.

PRAISE FOR LA FOLLETTE

When La Follette's "Autobiography" first appeared I read it, not once, but several times, and I have always considered him one of America's big men ever since I read what he said about himself.

You can't read this book without feeling that the man himself is talking to you. Every line breathes democratic simplicity, love of Country, and devotion to the interests of his fellows.

La Follette wouldn't have you believe that he is a superman; he tells you that he is nothing more than one of the people.

When you know the man, you have a keen appreciation of a truly great American, one who fought hard for his convictions, and went about his way not the least sore with humanity because he lost.

The press has not permitted you to know Senator Robert M. La Follette. Subsidized corporation papers have cruelly misrepresented the man, his work, and even his loyalty to his country.

Beginning life without a dollar, as he himself tells you in his book, this product of a log cabin of Wisconsin has fought his battles without once courting favors from those Captains of Industry who generally make and unmake public men in America; and he has done it so well that he is today far and away bigger and better than any of the so-called "great" who took orders from Morgan, Gary, and Harriman, et al.

When you read his book and learn the price he paid for being independent, you will love the man. He tells you how his colleagues shunned him, sneered at him, deserted the hall when he spoke, simply because La-Follette's philosophy was not then, and is not now, tainted with Wall Street ointment.

During the late war, Senator La-Follette suffered precisely the same fate Mr. Watson suffered in Georgia. The powers-that-were damned them simply because their minds didn't travel along the same lines of our most eminent Has-been. Both have lived to see complete vindication, and they have grown stronger with the people because the people now appreciate the price La Follette and Watson paid for being MEN.—Columbia Co., Sentinel.

Voice Of The People

SUNDAY REFLECTIONS

[To the Editor]:—Consideringthe Saturday report in The Capital Times, of the various activities among those students, and the "Coeds," I am wondering how much decency, civility and democratic Americanism will be left in 1922?

Evidently the monkeys have a clear case against Darwin for defamation of character.

It occurs to me that Fatty Arbuckle and the Ladies of the film are not so demoralizing to civilization as the perpetrators of hoodlumism by students in a great university. * * *

A certain man borrowed $200 in order to buy lumber for a home. For twenty-five years he paid interest which amounted to $300 and he still was owing the $200 of principal! He also paid taxes to the amount of another $300: total $600 in twenty-five years.

Another man rented his home paying an average of twelve dollars per month rent; and moving frequently at considerable expense, $3,500 rent in 25 years!

The man who loaned the $200 was a blacksmith who had saved his wages, and also supported his family. He was glad to loan the money and the other man was glad to borrow it. The houses in which the renter made his home, were built by men who had sweat for the money the houses cost them; and upon which they paid taxes; (and made repair at considerable expense). Another man bought anything he could get trusted for, and was very forgetful about paying accounts. He is the fellow who is worrying most about "Profiteers!" Yet he does not mind expense for auto repairs, or gasoline!

The $1000 paid for an auto would if placed at interest, accumulate enough to build a decent house! * *

I have seen no K. K. Klan outrages mentioned, except those reported as occurring among the U. W. students, male and female.

What "High Ideals" must prevail among the Regents and the Faculty, permitting such outrages against decency! Very disgustedly—M. R. Wheeler—Heathen.

ON THE SIDE

A woman with a small boy
Approached the ticket window
In a local railway station
And when the attendant came
She asked: "What time does the train
Leave for Perkinsville?"
The man grew red in the face
And choked down his anger
With considerable effort.
"I have told you nine times,
The train leaves for Perkinsville
At three fifty-seven. Do you understand?"
"I understand perfectly," she said.
"I know you have told me nine times
But I have got to entertain
Little Johnny while we are waiting
And he says he likes to see
You come up to the window
Behind those bars because
It reminds him of the zoo."

FAILURES OF AN OPTIMIST.

I never had the courage to eat a chestnut in the dark.

I have been unable to discover a Mayflower ancestor in my ancestry.

I have never seen anybody in a barber's chair shake his head when the barber holds a mirror behind the victim's neck after a haircut.

I am never moved by weeping close ups of the movie heroine, because I know that near her stands the property man's assistant with a plate of sliced raw onions.

I have never been able to finish a story in the "Saturday Evening Post." I always lose the trail somewhere amid corsets, shaving cream, spark plugs, canned soup, nightgowns and rubber heels.—A. A. Thomas.

I cannot sing the old songs,
I wouldn't if I could.
I can't sing with the zest and zip
That once made them so good.

Its volumn only musters
One-half of one per cent.
